Mortland, secretary; Wortley Dickie, treasurer; C. G. Pearson, inner guard; J. O. St. John, outer guard; M. Lee Ferguson, George T. Mattern, Jr., and H. E. Frazier, trustees; and J. R. RICHMOND LODGE HAS

HAD RAPID GROWTH
The Richmond lodge was instituted in March, 1915, and has shown rapid progress, having a membership now of over 300. The Moose have just recently moved into their beautiful decorated and tastefully furnished clubhouse at 225 East Franklin Street. They pride themselves upon their originality and progressiveness.

There are over 600,000 Moose throughout the world, representing 1,554 lodges. The Vice-President of the United States, and many of the most prominent men of the world, are members of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The supreme lodge on January 1, 1913, purchased 1,000 acres of land on the Fox River, near Aurora, Ill. On this site is now almost completed a large industrial university and college at a cost of $5,000,000; there are also printing and engraving plants, woodworking shops, brick and terra cotta plant, stock farm, horticultural farms and many other vocational features. At these the orphans and children of Moose whose parents are unable to educate them are given vocational training which will fit them for life.

Sanatorium and cottages for aged members and their wives; also a sanatorium for afflicted Moose who have incurable diseases are provided.

PRaises U. S. NAVY

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Senator Hardwick, addressing the Senate today, praised the United States Navy as the best in the world, man for man and ship for ship. He spoke in support of his bill extending military instruction in schools and colleges as the best solution of what he termed the "most troublesome and most important question of any preparedness system," the creation of a military reserve.

The Hardwick bill contemplates the appropriation of $20,000,000 for the payment of officers as instructors for military drill and equipment of students. There are nearly 2,000,000 boys over fifteen years of age in schools and colleges, he said, and their training would create a large, intelligent reserve force and improve their standards.

R., F. & P. R. R. TO BUILD WHEN CITY TAKES ACTION

Drainage of Territory in West End, President White Declares Is First Engineering Problem.

COST $50,000, SAYS HANKINS

Municipal Surveyor Outlines Plan for Construction of Sewer Which Would Carry Out Purpose for New Belt Line Station.

"The Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Company is ready to proceed with the work on the proposed Belt Line station just as soon as the city makes the construction of such a station an engineering possibility," said President White, of this road, yesterday, by way of reducing the West End depot situation to its simplest terms.

The engineering problem particularly in question has to do with the proper drainage of the territory immediately to the east of the Belt Line. The drainage of the territory to the west of the Belt Line is not a factor as regards the proper draining of the railroad cut contemplated by the depressing of the tracks under the accepted plan.

WILL COST $50,000

Engineer M. O. Hankins, in charge of surveys for the annexed territory and director for the Administrative Board of the surveys for the Belt Line improvement, said last night:

"The drainage of the territory immediately to the east of the Belt Line can be accomplished by the construction of a main sewer extending from Cary Street along Avenue B and through Cuthaw Avenue to the main sewer in the Boulevard. The construction of such a sewer, with its laterals and basins, would cost approximately $50,000. The main sewer itself would be about a mile and a half long."

The taking care by the city of the drainage territory will be insisted upon by the railroad company as a condition precedent to its prosecuting the West End station plan. From the statement of Mr. Hankins it appears that this portion of the municipal work required to make the new station an "engineering possibility" will cost not more than $50,000.

Charming Spring Modes

For All Occasions

"Openings" are VERY INTERESTING affairs. Aside from the state of "preparedness" they exhibit, their newness and beauty attracts and their varied charms enthrall. And, drawing sharply the line of demarcation between fashion seasons, they eliminate the necessity of longer waiting to be informed as to STYLES; they proclaim to listening ears the welcome news that "it's time for New Clothes!"

Welcome to view the assortments at Miller & Rhoads. The styles for Spring are here—augmented by new arrivals daily—lingering only long enough to receive their deserved approval.

Some Sidelights on the "Opening"

Three or four years ago there was a "tailor-made" Spring—remember? Everywoman never looked more like her sister. It's a revelation this Spring—this delightful riot of styles and colors in which there are almost no two alike.

A little Elizabethan dress, in pink and blue, gros de londres is a center of interest that approaches excitement. It is one of the more naive creations showing the full barrel hoop—a forerunner of a future mode, perhaps, but just now the object of many critical comments.

"Be a sport!" seems to be the motto of the outer garments. Women are "perfectly wild" about the hundreds of new sport styles, and they're being adopted for all regular uses as well as for sport-wear.

By no means does all the interest center in the ready-to-put-on styles. Dress goods, notions, trimmings—all are responding to numberless calls, and the pattern counter is fairly besieged.

For the smaller girls the new "Flapper Dress" is perhaps the leading innovation. A hand-smocked, double skirted beauty for the miss of twelve to sixteen.

For the very young miss there's much interest in a group of Silk Poplin Coats, with hats to match, in Edith rose.

—Second Floor.

The Leather Collar and Cuff Sets made the Neckwear Counter one of the bright spots of popular favor, and no wonder.

—First Floor.

For the golf girl the Venetian Sweater Coat proved a favorite. It is colored-stripe silk, with a substantial silk belt and sleeves cut in a full Raglan style to allow a perfectly free drive.

—Second Floor.

Never was anything more popular than the various silk undergarments in pink and flesh color. Bloomers, Teddies, Union Suits, Camisoles, Vests, Gowns, Chemises—even breakfast jackets have made their appearance in the Underwear Section in dozens of differing guises.

—Second Floor.

One of the pink silk variations is a Dancing Skirt with camisole, showing the modish barrel hoop idea beautifully adapted.

The Redingote Chemise is an absolutely new creation that appears in silk in the French pink-and-blue combination; hand-embroidered, and with gown to match. The set is priced $20.00.

Other Suits among the higher grades consist of very large varieties of gabardines, serge, taffeta, gros de londres and other smart materials in the season's prevailing colors.
